

Jesus' Intimacy with God

It was Jesus' grace-filled response that opened the way for God to enter fully into the human condition. In the Prologue to John's Gospel we are reminded of God bringing about creation through his Word (John 1:1-5), echoing the "Let it be!" of the creation account in Genesis 1.

'In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was towards God, and the Word was God.

The Word was in the beginning with God.

All things came into being through him, and without him not one thing came into being.

What has come into being in him was life, and the life was the light of all people.

The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not overcome it.'

We are reminded, too, that, though God's Word (God's gift of God's Self) was often rejected, even in Israel (John 1:10-11), there were always those who welcomed God's gift and lived as God's children (John 1:12-13).

The true light, which enlightens everyone, was coming into the world.

God's Word was in the world,
and the world came into being through him;
yet the world did not know him.

God's Word came to what was his own,
and his own people did not accept him.

But to all who received him, who believed in his name,
he gave power to become children of God,
who were born, not of blood
or of the will of the flesh
or of the will of man, but of God.

However, it was only, finally, in Jesus, that God's Word was embraced fully, and entered into the communion with creation that God had always willed (John 1:14). This is what those who knew Jesus experienced when they experienced Jesus' love, and it is this that they wanted to share with everyone.

The Word became flesh and lived among us, and we have seen his glory, the glory as of a father's only son, full of the gift of truth.

From his fullness we have all received, grace upon grace.

The law indeed was given through Moses;

the gift truth came through Jesus Christ.

No one has ever seen God.

It is God the only Son, who is close to the Father's heart,

who has made him known.

Thanks to Jesus, and through communion with him, we are able to 'live and live to the full'(John 10:10). Not knowing of Jesus we can hope that our longing for life can be fulfilled. Knowing Jesus we have assurance that our longing is God-given and that God truly wants us to be 'saved'(to experience the fulfilment of our deepest longings in love-communion with God and so with creation).

In Paul's words" 'in Christ God was reconciling the world to himself'(2Corinthians 5:19).

In John's words: 'God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him may not perish but may have eternal life'(John 3:16).

Hence the conviction of Jesus' followers that they must carry on the mission of Jesus by sharing the Good News with 'all nations'(Matthew 28:19).

It was Jesus' communion with God that was the source of his life. It nourished and sustained him throughout his life and ultimately in his dying. At the Last Supper, with a broken heart, he said: 'You will be scattered, each one to his home, and you will leave me alone'(John 16:32). He went straight on to add: 'Yet I am not alone because the Father is with me.' From the cross he prayed: 'Father, into your hands I commend my spirit [my life-breath; the Spirit of communion we have always shared]'(Luke 23:46). This love was the source of the love he shared with everyone who was open to welcome it.

If we look to Jesus and dare to follow him, if we let his response to God fill our hearts and lives, we will know that sin need not have the last word. God is love. God wants us to live to the full. God's forgiveness, if we open ourselves to welcome it and if we determine to live in God's love, will set us free from whatever it is that holds us back from living our God-given and God-graced humanity to the full.

Because he perfectly responded to grace, Jesus is a gift for everyone. In Jesus, at last, we can see God reconciling the world to Himself (see Colossians 1:20 and 2Corinthians 5:18-19). Living in communion with Jesus we are able to live in such a way that God can be 'everything to everyone' (1Corinthians 15:28).

Jesus' special relationship with God

At the heart of Jesus' disciples attraction to him was their experience of his special relationship to God. Again and again the Gospels speak of Jesus' prayer. Having described a busy day in Jesus' ministry, Mark writes that Jesus left the house to find a secluded place where he could be alone in prayer (see Mark 1:35). Luke tells us that 'many crowds would gather to hear Jesus and to be cured of their diseases. but he would withdraw to deserted places and pray'(Luke 5:16). Before selecting his twelve disciples, 'Jesus went out to the mountain to pray, and spent the whole night in prayer to God'(Luke 6:12).

It was after he had been praying alone that he asked his disciples who they thought he was (see Luke 9:18). Matthew, Mark and Luke all describe the scene where 'Jesus took with him Peter and John and James, and went up on the mountain to pray'(Luke 9:28). They go on to describe the transfiguration (Matthew 17:1-8; Mark 9:2-8; Luke 9:28-36).

Luke records a prayer that burst from the heart of Jesus: ‘At that time Jesus rejoiced in the Holy Spirit and said, “I thank you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and the intelligent and have revealed them to infants; yes, Father, for such was your gracious will. All things have been handed over to me by my Father; and no one knows who the Son is except the Father, or who the Father is except the Son and anyone to whom the Son chooses to reveal him.”(Luke 10:21-22; see Matthew 11:25-27).

This prayer reveals the special intimacy Jesus experienced with God, whom he addresses as 'Father'.

It was this special relationship that fascinated Jesus' disciples, and, more than anything else attracted them to him. It was this, too, that scandalised the religious leaders (John 5:18). Jesus knew that his being and his mission were from the Father (John 5:26; 5:30).

Luke records that on one occasion the disciples, seeing Jesus at prayer asked him: 'Lord, teach us to pray'(Luke 11:1). Jesus spoke of God as their Father, too (see Matthew 6:14-15; 6:26; 6:32; 7:11; Luke 11:13; 12:30), and they wanted to share the kind of intimacy with God that was so apparent in Jesus. This intimate communion with God is what John calls 'eternal life'(see John 3:16; 4:14).

Matthew, Mark and Luke describe Jesus' anguished prayer in Gethsemani (see Matthew 26:36-46; Mark 14:32-42; Luke 22:39-46; compare John 12:27). Jesus' humanity, but also his faith in God are, perhaps, nowhere shown more poignantly than in his cry from the cross: 'My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?' (Matthew 27:46; Mark 15:34). It is his faith in God that Luke highlights when he records Jesus' prayer from the cross: 'Father, into your hands I commend my spirit' (23:46).

No one brings out the intimacy of Jesus with God better than the Beloved Disciple, who leaned against Jesus' breast at the Last Supper, and stood with Jesus' mother at the foot of the cross. This is especially clear in his account of the Last Supper.

Everything Jesus said or did came from this special communion. John writes: 'The Father loves the Son and has placed everything in his hands'(John 3:35). His special communion did not protect him from the suffering that is part of the human experience, but it sustained him, and the fruit of this communion was a loving that his disciples had never previously experienced: a love for them, indeed for the world, that flowed from his loving communion with God

 Jesus! I am resting, resting

*Jesus! I am resting, resting
in the joy of what Thou art;
I am finding out the greatness
of Thy loving heart.*

Thou hast bid me gaze
upon Thee,
and Thy beauty fills my
soul,
for, by Thy transforming power,
Thou hast made me whole.

Oh, how great Thy loving kindness,
vaster, broader than the sea:
Oh, how marvellous Thy goodness,
lavished all on me!
Yes, I rest in Thee, Beloved,
know what wealth of grace is Thine, know Thy certainty of
promise,
and have made it mine.

*Jesus! I am resting, resting
in the joy of what Thou art;*

Ever lift Thy face upon me,
as I work and wait for Thee;
resting 'neath Thy smile, Lord,
earth's dark shadows flee.
Brightness of my Father's glory
sunshine of my Father's face,
keep me ever trusting, resting,
fill me with Thy grace.

*Jesus! I am resting, resting
in the joy of what Thou art;
I am finding out the greatness
of Thy loving heart.*
